

The Dish: Expanded Beta Phase
Highlights

- Eric Dishman, director of the All of Us Research Program, provides an update on the status of the program.
- The beta phase has been very successful, uncovering what is working well and where we need to strengthen our platform and the participant experience and messaging.
- Based on what we have learned, we have decided to launch a second, expanded beta phase starting in early November.
- There are four main objectives for this expanded beta phase:
 1. Expand and test our engagement capacity with diverse communities.
 2. Improve the participant experience.
 3. Enhance infrastructure and tools for staff.
 4. Add scientific and data capabilities.
- Following this expanded beta phase, we look forward to opening the program widely with a national launch targeted for Spring 2018.
